PATIENT ROOMS

Hospital wards have come a long way: from their perfunctory use in the early days – devoid of comfort, style and safety – today's hospital wards are modern, clean, safe and stylish. These spaces are now regarded as healing zones for patients to recover and convalesce. Modern-day ward settings are now primed to offer warmth, cosiness while encompassing a homely vibe. From curtains, flooring, furniture upholstery to glass-lined surfaces, these materials are now paramount in creating a soothing, quiet and comforting oasis of peace. It is important to have versatile, safe, and rigorous wallcovering, fabric and flooring solutions to create a restful and secure ward that can improve a patient's health.

TREATMENT ROOMS

Sometimes therapy and treatment rooms can be given “by-the-way” standards. This is essentially a place for patients to rejuvenate, recuperate and enjoy a moment of therapy. Ultimately, it should feel like a domicile – warm, inviting and homely. Undoubtedly, it should also endure the rigours of heavy foot-fall and the occasional knocks and thuds. Therefore, it is critical to have versatile and safe wallcovering, fabric and flooring solutions in order to achieve a safe, enduring and comforting environment.

OTHER AREAS RESEARCH LABORATORIES, FOOD PREPARATION,

Spaces for commercial or industrial usage such as research laboratories, food preparation, and restrooms often take the hardest hits in the day-to-day grind. These zones often harbour heat and moisture, making it the perfect breeding ground for mould and bacteria. If ignored, these could result in contamination. In addition, these spaces are also prone to splashes and spillages, something that a healthcare laboratory or industrial kitchen may want to avert as such threats could affect hygiene standards and overall well-being. When creating this space, it is important to create a sense of warmth and cosiness while ensuring a safe and hospitable environment. Therefore, it is imperative to incorporate versatile and safe wallcovering and flooring solutions.
